INTRODUCTION

Stipendium Hungaricum programme relies on active participation of sending partners. Each sending partner must make Nomination during the application process (December – June). Partners are expected to make their nominations after individuals submitted their application to the main online (TPF) Call for Applications but before the university entry exams. There are 4 weeks for nomination in March 2018. (26.02.- 30.03.2018)

This means that by the end of March, partners must send their nomination lists (nominees + waiting list 20%-at least, ranked) of selected students.

When the number of applicants is not too high, partners are able to manage evaluation and rank nominees. What happens, when there are much more applicants?

TO MANAGE NOMINATIONS SENDING PARTNERS MAY

Organize a separate application round organized by the partner itself (in parallel with TPF application): this way giving more (early national result) time for decision/preparing the nomination;

Rely on rules, laws (eg. Constitution): providing guidance of hierarchy amongst applications (eg. favouring tribes; regions of the country)

Rely on national education policies, priorities providing guidance of hierarchy. For example favouring postgraduate students to undergraduates; favouring students who have never been abroad; favouring staff working in/with higher education, ministries etc.

SELECTION ROUND, NOMINATION

We encourage all sending partners to share with us national selection, ranking process; to develop transparent selection; to share selection, ranking methodology on local level.

Let's see two practices of Sending Partners.

Presenters:

Suhad Omran, representative of Sending Partner, Damascus University Syria

Ahmed Waheed Mangi, representative of Sending Partner, Pakistan

QUESTIONS TO:

Presenters:

How many applicants are from the respective country?

Is there any increase in the number of applications?

How do you deal with the national application process?

Participants:

Are there any other countries which have many applicants?

Is there a national application (parallel with online TPF application) or do you use the TPF data?

Do you plan to work on national selection process for SH scholarship in the next 1-2 years?

Thank you for your attention!
